PHILOSOPHY

What Can I Do With This Major?

Division of Academic Affairs

What Is Philosophy?

Philosophers investigate questions that are usually left unasked by most of us. What is justice? What does it mean to live the good life? What is the nature of time, space, matter? What's the difference between a theory and a fact? How does the mind generate knowledge? Philosophy relies on reason to work out answers to fundamental questions. UCF offers a B.A. degree in Philosophy, a graduate certificate in Ethics, and minors in Philosophy and Cognitive Sciences.

- To serve as a resource to its members and the rest of the university, acting as an organ for the critical discussion of philosophical topics; To enrich student minds through direct involvement with peers sharing a common interest in ideas; To develop inter-collegiate social contacts with similar societies at other universities.

Ethics Bowl

- Each year philosophy majors participate in local ethics bowl competition. Similar to a debate team, UCF students compete against students from other universities in disputations concerning contemporary moral issues.
